The 85th Texas legislative session ended as it started. Contention between the House and Senate, budget constraints, local control, and private versus public debates garnered many headlines. But just like previous sessions, water continued to play a major role with our lawmakers.

Join Heather Cooke and Julie Nahrgang for a legislative recap of WEAT/TACWA tracked bills and their potential impact on the water quality industry in Texas. Get a full recap on trends in water legislation, what bills became law, and how these affect Texas Utilities and the water quality industry.
